v.
AMZ GROUP LLC,
Defendant.

Case No. 20-cv-03336-VKD

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS

Re: Dkt. No. 10

Asserting diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332, plaintiffs Spread Your Wings, LLC (“SYW”), Blossom Hill Buildings, LLC (“BHB”) and Andrew S. Dumbaya filed this action, seeking rescission of four agreements (“Agreements”) SYW and BHB entered into with defendant AMZ Group, LLC (“AMZ”). AMZ now moves to dismiss this lawsuit, based on the doctrine of forum non conveniens, arguing that forum selection clauses in each of the Agreements require the parties’ disputes to be brought in New York, where AMZ has already filed a contract action against plaintiffs. Upon consideration of the moving and responding papers,<sup>1</sup> as well as the arguments presented at the August 4, 2020 motion hearing, the Court grants AMZ’s motion, but rather than dismiss the complaint, the Court will instead transfer this matter to New York.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> For the first time at the motion hearing, plaintiffs belatedly moved to strike paragraphs 2, 3 and 7 of Mr. Fidler’s reply declaration (Dkt. No. 19-1). See Dkt. No. 24 at 19. Such objections must be filed within seven days after the reply is filed. Civ. L.R. 7-3(d). In any event, as the Court has not found it necessary to rely on those portions of Mr. Fidler’s reply declaration, plaintiffs’ motion to strike is deemed moot.

<sup>2</sup> All parties have expressly consented that all proceedings in this matter may be heard and finally adjudicated by a magistrate judge. 28 U.S.C. § 636(c); Fed. R. Civ. P. 73; Dkt. Nos. 7, 17.

1       I. BACKGROUND

2           According to their complaint, SYW and BHB are California companies, and Mr. Dumbaya
3           is SYW's owner and Chief Executive Officer. Dkt. No. 1 ¶¶ 1-3. SYW says that around April 4           2019, AMZ, a New York company, approached plaintiffs and offered to help SYW with its cash
5           flow problems. Id. ¶¶ 4, 7. Between May 2019 and July 2019, SYW and BHB entered into four 6           Agreements with AMZ, and Mr. Dumbaya signed related guaranties. Id. ¶¶ 8, 12. The complaint
7           further alleges that the subject agreements, which are dated May 2, 2019, May 31, 2019, June 6, 8           2019 and July 29, 2019, ostensibly provide that plaintiffs were selling to AMZ a percentage of 9           SYW's future receipts. Id. ¶ 6. That is, AMZ was to provide weekly cash advances to plaintiffs 10          and would be repaid from the proceeds of SYW's future accounts receivable, to be collected via 11          preauthorized electronic debits from SYW's bank account. Id. ¶ 8. For example, the May 2, 2019
12          Agreement indicates that plaintiffs sold a "Specified Percentage" of 24% of their future accounts 13          to AMZ, and AMZ would deduct a "Specific Daily Amount" of $10,826.53 from plaintiffs'
14          account. Dkt. No. 13 at ECF 14; see also Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 8. The May 2, 2019 Agreement further 15          states that "[t]he Specific Daily Amount is intended to represent the Specified Percentage of 16          [plaintiffs'] future Receipts each calendar month," and that the "Specific Daily Amount" could be 17          adjusted "so the amount received by AMZ[] in the future more closely represents the Specified 18          Percentage." Dkt. No. 13 at ECF 16. Additionally, "once each calendar month, [plaintiffs] may 19          request that [AMZ] reconcile [plaintiffs'] actual receipts and adjust the Specific Daily Amount so 20          that the amount received by [AMZ] in the future more closely represents the Specified 21          Percentage." Id.

22           In practice, plaintiffs allege that the amount of AMZ's total debits in a given week nearly 23          equaled the amount of the week's cash advance and were never calculated as a percentage of 24          SYW's receivables. Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 8. In this way, plaintiffs allege that AMZ soon depleted their 25          account, SYW quickly became overextended, and AMZ claimed the initial May 2, 2019 loan was 26          in default. Id. ¶ 10. According to the complaint, AMZ instructed SYW to attempt to cure the 27          default by depositing all of SYW's accounts receivable into a bank account controlled by AMZ.
28          Id. ¶ 11. Plaintiffs did so, reportedly in reliance on AMZ's alleged promise to remit 100% of

1 SYW's accounts receivable to SYW. Id. In reality, plaintiffs say that AMZ applied their money
2 to the May 2, 2019 loan and kept SYW indebted to AMZ by issuing further Agreements. Id.
3 Plaintiffs claim that the Agreements are not true merchant agreements for the purchase of future
4 receipts, but actually are predatory loans with annual percentage rates exceeding 179%. Id. ¶¶ 6, 5 12. Additionally, plaintiffs claim that AMZ engaged in illegal and unethical collection activities.
6 Id. ¶ 14.

7 Plaintiffs' complaint asserts claims for declaratory and injunctive relief, as well as for 8 violation of California Usury Laws, violation of California's unfair competition law ("UCL"), Cal.
9 Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, et seq. (based on alleged violation of California Constitution art. XV
10 § 1, California Finance Code § 22000, et seq., and California Welfare and Institutions Code 11 § 14115.5), and for money had and received. Among other relief, the complaint seeks "rescission 12 of all agreements and restitution," as well as statutory penalties and damages of over $2 million.
13 Dkt. No. 1 at 23.

14 AMZ disputes that the Agreements are loans and contends that it performed its obligations 15 pursuant to the terms of the contracts. According to AMZ, plaintiffs breached the Agreements by 16 taking AMZ's cash advances, and then switching bank accounts without notice to AMZ, thereby 17 preventing AMZ from making the authorized daily electronic debits. Dkt. No. 10-1 ¶ 5 & Ex. 3
18 ¶¶ 17-21. In February 2020, AMZ sued plaintiffs in New York Supreme Court, County of Kings, 19 for breach of contract, claiming that plaintiffs owe over $1.3 million under the four Agreements at 20 issue.<sup>3</sup> Id.

21 Plaintiffs filed the present lawsuit in this District on May 15, 2020.

22 AMZ now seeks to enforce the forum selection clauses in the Agreements through the 23 doctrine of forum non conveniens. Plaintiffs oppose the motion primarily on the ground that the 24 forum selection clauses in question violate a strong California public policy embodied by state 25 finance and usury laws, and therefore are not enforceable. For the reasons discussed below, this

27 <sup>3</sup> Although AMZ's lawsuit remains pending in New York state court, the parties have agreed to 28 stay those proceedings pending this Court's resolution of AMZ's present motion to dismiss. See
Dkt. No. 24 at 7.

1 Court grants the motion and will transfer this action to federal court in New York.

2 II. LEGAL STANDARD

3 A motion to transfer venue pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) is “a mechanism for 4 enforcement of forum-selection clauses that point to a particular federal district,” Atl. Marine 5 Constr. Co. v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for W. Dist. of Tex., 571 U.S. 49, 59 (2013), whereas “the appropriate 6 way to enforce a forum-selection clause pointing to a state or foreign forum is through the doctrine 7 of forum non conveniens,” id. at 60. “Section 1404(a) is merely a codification of the doctrine of 8 forum non conveniens for the subset of cases in which the transferee forum is within the federal 9 court system; in such cases, Congress has replaced the traditional remedy of outright dismissal 10 with transfer.” Id. at 60. “And because both § 1404(a) and the forum non conveniens doctrine 11 from which it derives entail the same balancing-of-interests standard, courts should evaluate a 12 forum-selection clause pointing to a nonfederal forum in the same way that they evaluate a forum-13 selection clause pointing to a federal forum.” Id. at 61.

14 Even in diversity cases, federal law governs the analysis of the effect and scope of forum 15 selection clauses. Sun v. Advanced China Healthcare, Inc., 901 F.3d 1081, 1086 (9th Cir. 2018); 16 see also Stewart Org., Inc. v. Ricoh Corp., 487 U.S. 22, 29-32 (1988). If the Court determines that 17 a dispute is covered by a forum selection clause, the forum selection clause should be enforced 18 “unless enforcement is shown by the resisting party to be ‘unreasonable’ under the 19 circumstances.” M/S Bremen v. Zapata Off-Shore Co., 407 U.S. 1, 10 (1972). Where the parties 20 have agreed to a valid forum selection clause, the plaintiff’s choice of forum merits no weight, the 21 parties’ private interests are deemed to weigh entirely in favor of the preselected forum, and a 22 transfer of venue will not carry with it the original venue’s choice-of-law rules. Atl. Marine, 571 23 U.S. at 63-64. Thus, a valid forum selection clause should be given “‘controlling weight in all but 24 the most exceptional cases.’” Id. at 63 (quoting Stewart, 487 U.S. at 33). As the parties resisting 25 enforcement of the forum selection clauses, plaintiffs “bear the burden of showing why the court 26 should not transfer the case to the forum to which the parties agreed.” Sun, 901 F.3d at 1087
27 (quoting Atl. Marine, 571 U.S. at 64).

28 A forum selection clause is unenforceable if the party resisting enforcement makes a strong

1 showing that (1) “the clause [i]s invalid for such reasons as fraud or overreaching,” 2 (2) “enforcement would contravene a strong public policy of the forum in which suit is brought, 3 whether declared by statute or by judicial decision,” or (3) proceeding in the selected forum will 4 be “so gravely difficult and inconvenient” that the complaining party “will for all practical 5 purposes be deprived of his day in court.” M/S Bremen, 407 U.S. at 15, 18; see also Sun, 901 F.3d 6 at 1088.

7 On a motion to enforce a forum selection clause, the pleadings need not be accepted as 8 true, and facts outside the pleadings may be considered. Doe v. AOL, LLC, 552 F.3d 1077, 1081
9 (9th Cir. 2009).

10 III. DISCUSSION

11 A. Applicability and Scope of the Forum Selection Clauses

12 Federal law applies to the interpretation of forum selection clauses. Sun, 901 F.3d at 1086; 13 Manetti-Farrow, Inc. v. Gucci America, Inc., 858 F.2d 509, 513 (9th Cir. 1988). When 14 interpreting a contract under federal law, courts “look to general principles for interpreting 15 contracts.” Klamath Water Users Protective Ass’n v. Patterson, 204 F.3d 1206, 1210 (9th Cir.
16 1999); see also Sun, 901 F.3d at 1086. Whenever possible, the plain language of the contract is 17 considered first and contract terms are given their ordinary meaning. *Klamath Water Users
Protective Ass’n*, 204 F.3d at 1210.

18 The first three Agreements at issue contain a forum selection clause that provides that each 19 agreement is “governed by and construed in accordance with the law of the State of New York, 20 without regards to any applicable principles of conflicts of law.” Each clause further states that 21 “[a]ny suit, action or proceeding arising hereunder, or the interpretation, performance or breach 22 hereof, shall, if AMZ[] so elects, be instituted in any court sitting in New York (the ‘Acceptable 23 Forums’).” Dkt. No. 10-1, Ex. 1; Dkt. No. 13, Ex. A. The July 29, 2019 Agreement contains 24 somewhat different language, but nonetheless similarly provides that the contract is “governed by 25 and construed exclusively in accordance with the laws of the state of New York, without regards 26 to any applicable principles of conflicts of law,” and that “[i]f there is any suit, action or 27 proceeding arising hereunder, or the interpretation, performance or breach hereof or in any dispute
28 proceeding arising hereunder, or the interpretation, performance or breach hereof or in any dispute

1 arising among the parties, then such litigation shall only be instituted in any court sitting in New 2 York State (the ‘Acceptable Forums’).” Dkt. No. 10-1, Ex. A; Dkt. No. 13, Ex. A.

3 Because the subject forum selection clauses provide that disputes must be brought in “any 4 court sitting in New York,” the clauses permit suits to be brought in both federal and state courts 5 in New York. See AOL, 552 F.3d at 1081-82 (construing a forum selection clause identifying 6 courts “of Virginia,” as opposed to “in Virginia,” to refer only to Virginia state courts and not to 7 federal courts in Virginia).

8 With respect to disputes covered by the forum selection clauses, the Ninth Circuit has held 9 that forum selection clauses for actions “arising out of” a particular agreement apply only to 10 disputes relating to the interpretation and performance of the contract itself.” Sun, 901 F.3d at 11 1086 (internal quotations and citation omitted). “By contrast, forum-selection clauses covering 12 disputes ‘relating to’ a particular agreement apply to any disputes that reference the agreement or 13 have some ‘logical or causal connection’ to the agreement.” Id. “The dispute need not grow out 14 of the contract or require interpretation of the contract in order to relate to the contract.” Id.
15 Based on the language of the Agreements, the forum selection clauses at issue apply to disputes 16 relating to the interpretation and performance of the Agreements.

17 Although not articulated in their opposition papers, at oral argument plaintiffs contended 18 that the forum selection clauses cannot apply to any of their claims, which plaintiffs say are non-19 contractual claims that sound in tort. Dkt. No. 24 at 16. However, forum selection clauses are not 20 limited to contract claims and “can be equally applicable to contractual and tort causes of action.”
21 Manetti-Farrow, Inc., 858 F.2d at 514. The scope of the claims covered by a forum selection 22 clause depends on the language used in the clause. Thus, for example, in Manetti-Farrow, Inc.
23 where the forum selection clause in question covered “disputes regarding ‘interpretation’ or 24 ‘fulfillment’ of the contract,” the Ninth Circuit stated that “[w]hether a forum selection clause 25 applies to tort claims depends on whether resolution of the claims relates to interpretation of the 26 contract.” Manetti-Farrow, Inc., 858 F.2d at 514. The Ninth Circuit found that the tort claims in 27 question fell within the scope of the forum selection clause requiring disputes to be brought in 28 Italy because those tort claims related to the parties’ “central conflict over the interpretation of the 1 contract.” Id.

2 In the present action, although it is not clear whether the parties have a dispute about what 3 particular terms in the Agreements mean, the parties do dispute whether the Agreements properly 4 are characterized as merchant cash agreements or as loans. The term “interpretation” in the 5 subject forum selection clauses would appear to be broad enough to encompass disputes over the 6 both the legal interpretation and characterization of the Agreements. At the very least, the parties 7 clearly do have a dispute over performance of the Agreements, which in turn informs how the 8 Agreements should be characterized. For example, the parties dispute whether, by their terms, the 9 Agreements had a legitimate objective and whether the parties’ actual conduct or performance 10 deviates from what the Agreements provide. Accordingly, the Court finds that the forum selection 11 clauses in each of the subject Agreements apply to plaintiffs’ claims.

12 B. Validity and Enforceability of the Forum Selection Clauses

13 As noted above, a forum selection clause must be enforced unless the party resisting 14 enforcement makes a strong showing that (1) “the clause [i]s invalid for such reasons as fraud or 15 overreaching” (2) “enforcement would contravene a strong public policy of the forum in which 16 suit is brought, whether declared by statute or by judicial decision,” or (3) proceeding in the 17 selected forum will be “so gravely difficult and inconvenient” that the complaining party “will for 18 all practical purposes be deprived of his day in court.” M/S Bremen, 407 U.S. at 15, 18; see also 19 Sun, 901 F.3d at 1087. The Court will address the first and third exceptions, and then turn to the 20 second exception, which appears to be plaintiffs’ primary ground for opposing enforcement of the 21 forum selection clauses at issue.

22 1. Fraud or Overreaching

23 Citing Evolution Online Sys., Inc. v. Koninklijke PTT Nederland, N.V., 145 F.3d 505 (2d 24 Cir. 1998), plaintiffs maintain that the four Agreements are unlawful and therefore void; and if the 25 agreements are entirely void, plaintiffs argue that there can be no valid forum selection clause.
26 Dkt. No. 12 at 18. Evolution Online is distinguishable in that the parties to that case exchanged 27 draft contracts, but never entered into any written agreement. 145 F.3d at 507. Absent a clear 28 finding by the district court regarding the existence of a contract, the Second Circuit concluded

1 that the district court’s determination that the parties agreed on a forum selection clause was 2 premature. Id. at 509. In the present matter, by contrast, there is no apparent dispute as to the 3 existence of any of the Agreements at issue.

4 Moreover, insofar as plaintiffs’ arguments pertain to the validity of the Agreements as a 5 whole, they have not met their heavy burden to show that the forum selection clauses contained 6 within those contracts are invalid. Here, plaintiffs argue that “[a]ll of the indicia of fraud, 7 overreaching, [and] fundamental unfairness” are present. Dkt. No. 12 at 20. Plaintiffs suggest that 8 they were misled into entering into the Agreements, particularly with respect to the three 9 agreements executed after they entered into the initial May 2, 2019 Agreement. Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 11.
10 However, “[t]he fraud exception to the general rule of enforceability ‘does not mean that any time 11 a dispute arising out of a transaction is based upon an allegation of fraud . . . the [forum selection] 12 clause is unenforceable [but r]ather . . . [that the] forum-selection clause in a contract is not 13 enforceable if the inclusion of that clause in the contract was the product of fraud or coercion.’” 14 Aimsley Enters., Inc. v. Merryman, No. 19-cv-02101-YGR, 2020 WL 1677330, at *5 (N.D. Cal.
15 Apr. 6, 2020) (quoting Scherk v. Alberto-Culver Co., 417 U.S. 506, 519 n.14 (1974)); see also 16 Batchelder v. Kawamoto, 147 F.3d 915, 919 (9th Cir. 1998) (the “Supreme Court has noted that 17 simply alleging that one was duped into signing the contract is not enough. . . . For a party to 18 escape a forum selection clause on the grounds of fraud, it must show that the inclusion of that 19 clause in the contract was the product of fraud or coercion.”) (internal quotations and citation 20 omitted). Plaintiffs do not contend that the Agreements’ inclusion of these forum selection clauses 21 specifically was the product of fraud or coercion.

22 “Overreaching is generally seen as ‘a ground short of fraud.’” Mechanix Wear, Inc. v.
23 Performance Fabrics, Inc., No. 2:16-cv-09152-ODW (SS), 2017 WL 417193, at *5 (C.D. Cal., 24 Jan. 31, 2017) (quoting Murphy v. Schneider Int’l, Inc., 362 F.3d 1133, 1141 (9th Cir. 2004)). “In 25 evaluating whether an agreement was the product of overreaching, courts have taken into account 26 factors such as the signer’s level of education, power differentials between the parties, and 27 circumstances underlying the agreement’s signing,” including “how the clause is communicated.”
28 Id. Plaintiffs claim that the Agreements are non-negotiable form contracts and that they were not

1 in an equal bargaining position with AMZ at the time the Agreements were executed. They assert 2 that they were not represented by counsel and did not realize that they were agreeing to a forum
3 selection clause requiring disputes to be brought in New York. See Dkt. No. 13 ¶ 20.<sup>4</sup> Plaintiffs 4 have not cited authority suggesting there is a per se rule that non-negotiated forum selection
5 clauses are never enforceable. See generally Carnival Cruise Lines, Inc. v. Shute, 499 U.S. 585, 6 593 (1991). Moreover, Mr. Dumbaya is SYW's owner and Chief Executive Officer. Dkt. No. 1 7 ¶ 3. Even assuming he was unaware of the forum selection clauses, the record indicates that he 8 had reasonable notice of the clauses. There is no indication that Mr. Dumbaya had insufficient 9 time to review the contracts, or that he had no opportunity to seek legal advice. Additionally, 10 while the Agreements are in small type font, plaintiffs raise no issue regarding the font, and the 11 forum selection clauses at issue are clearly labeled under the bold underlined heading "Binding 12 Effect; Governing Law; Venue and Jurisdiction" or "Governing Law, Venue and Jurisdiction" in a 13 four-page agreement. Dkt. No. 10-1, Ex. 1; Dkt. No. 13, Ex. A. See generally, e.g., Mechanix 14 Wear, Inc., 2017 WL 417193 at *5 (finding no overreaching where there was no evidence the 15 party resisting enforcement of the forum selection clause was prevented from seeking legal 16 counsel or that there was insufficient time for him to do so, and where the forum selection clause
17 appeared under the bold underlined heading "Governing Law/Forum" in the middle of a 4–page 18 typewritten agreement).

19 Plaintiffs have not met their burden to establish this exception to enforcement of the forum 20 selection clauses.

21 2. Difficulty or Inconvenience of Proceeding in New York

22 "Although the Supreme Court has not directly interpreted this [difficulty or inconvenience]
23 exception, Atlantic Marine suggests it is difficult to satisfy." Sun, 901 F.3d at 1091. Indeed, "a 24 [forum selection] clause remains enforceable even when the contractually selected forum may 25 afford the plaintiffs less effective remedies than they could receive in the forum where they filed 26 suit." Id. (citing Richards v. Lloyd's of London, 135 F.3d 1289, 1296 (9th Cir. 1998)). "Atlantic

27
28 <sup>4</sup> In considering this portion of Mr. Dumbaya's declaration, the Court has not considered legal argument and conclusions contained therein.

1     Marine confirms this conclusion, and establishes that the fact that certain types of remedies are 2     unavailable in the foreign forum does not change the calculus if there exists a basically fair court
3     system in that forum that would allow the plaintiff to seek some relief.” Id. (internal quotations 4     and citation omitted). “It is the availability of a remedy that matters, not predictions of the 5     likelihood of a win on the merits.” Id. at 1092 (internal quotations and citation omitted). Thus, 6     “under Atlantic Marine, courts must enforce a forum-selection clause unless the contractually 7     selected forum affords the plaintiffs no remedies whatsoever.” Id.

8                 Here, Mr. Dumbaya points out that plaintiffs have had to retain New York counsel, and he 9     generally asserts that “New York is an inconvenient forum for plaintiffs.” Dkt. No. 13 ¶ 27.
10    However, plaintiffs offer nothing to substantiate Mr. Dumbaya’s assertions regarding 11    inconvenience, much less explain how they might be left with no remedy in New York or how the 12    purported difficulty of litigating in New York would be “so manifestly and gravely inconvenient” 13    to plaintiffs that they “will be effectively deprived of a meaningful day in court.” M/S Bremen, 14    407 U.S. at 19. Plaintiffs have not met their burden to show that this exception to enforcement 15    applies to the forum selection clauses at issue.

16                 3.     Contravention of a Strong Public Policy

17                 Plaintiffs’ principal argument is that enforcement of the subject forum selection clauses 18     would contravene a strong public policy embodied in California’s “usury and lender laws.” Dkt.
19     No. 12 at 22. Here, plaintiffs argue that “the California usury and lender laws are unwaivable by 20     contract, specifically by the [A]greements’ forum selection clause.” Id.

21                 “When a forum-selection clause violates ‘a strong public policy of the forum in which suit 22     is brought,’ then it ‘should be held unenforceable.’” Lewis v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 953 F.3d 23     1160, 1166 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting M/S Bremen, 407 U.S. at 15). The Ninth Circuit has “referred 24     to such policies as unwaivable public rights.” Id. (internal quotations and citation omitted).
25     However, “the strong federal policy in favor of enforcing forum-selection clauses would supersede 26     antiwaiver provisions in state statutes as well as federal statutes, regardless whether the clause 27     points to a state court, a foreign court, or another federal court.” Sun, 901 F.3d at 1090. “Given 28     that many state and federal statutes include antiwaiver provisions, a rule that such provisions

1 preclude enforcement of a forum-selection clause would contradict Atlantic Marine's general rule
2 that forum-selection clauses are enforceable except in the exceptional case." Id. at 1090 n.7.
3 Thus, "an antiwaiver provision, without more, does not supersede the strong federal policy of 4 enforcing forum-selection clauses," and "the plaintiff must point to a statute or judicial decision 5 that clearly states such a strong public policy." Id. at 1090.

6 Here, plaintiffs do not identify any particular "California usury and lender laws" that they 7 claim reflect a strong California public policy. Instead, they urge this Court to follow Sessions v.
8 Prospect Funding Holdings LLC, No. 16-02620 SJO (DTBx), 2017 WL 7156283 (C.D. Cal. July 9 13, 2017). See Dkt. No. 13 at 20-21. In Sessions, the parties entered into a contract whereby the 10 defendant would provide the plaintiff with certain sums of money, secured by the plaintiff's 11 assignment of damages from her personal injury lawsuit. The Sessions plaintiff claimed that the 12 contract actually was a usurious loan. Notwithstanding a forum selection clause that required 13 disputes to be brought in New York, the plaintiff filed suit in California, asserting claims for 14 violation of California's usury law, unlawful contract, and for violations of California's unfair 15 competition law ("UCL"), Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, et seq. (with California's Finance Lender 16 Law, Cal. Fin. Code §§ 22000, et seq. asserted as the predicate for her UCL claim). In view of a 17 choice-of-law provision in the parties' contract, the Sessions court declined to enforce the forum 18 selection clause and transfer the action to New York, finding that a transfer would "likely result in 19 the application of New York law" and "effectuate a waiver of nonwaivable claims." Sessions, 20 2017 WL 7156283 at *4. In reaching that conclusion, Sessions cites Brack v. Omni Loan Co., 164
21 Cal. App. 4th 1312 (2008), a choice-of-law case in which the California Court of Appeal 22 concluded that while the Finance Lender Law "does not contain an express anti-waiver provision," 23 the statutory scheme as a whole "represents a fundamental policy of this state." Brack, 164 Cal.
24 App. 4th at 1328.

25 Like the plaintiff in Sessions, the plaintiffs in the present action also base their UCL claim 26 on California's Finance Lender Law statutes.<sup>5</sup> And, they have (indirectly) identified a judicial 27

28 <sup>5</sup> To the extent plaintiffs claim that a strong public policy is reflected in the other bases for their UCL claim, they have not cited any statute or judicial decision that clearly says so.

1 decision, Brack, that holds that those laws represent a “fundamental policy” of California.
2 Nevertheless, this Court is not persuaded that plaintiffs have met their burden to show that 3 enforcement of the forum selection clause would contravene a fundamental California policy as 4 reflected in California’s Finance Lender Law. In Sessions, the court concluded that enforcement 5 of the forum selection clause at issue would violate such a policy because the parties’ choice-of-6 law provision meant that a “court sitting in New York would apply New York substantive law and 7 need not engage in a conflict-of-laws analysis.” Sessions, 2017 WL 7156283 at *4. Sessions, 8 however, did not consider whether New York law differed from California’s Finance Lender Law
9 in ways that might make New York an inadequate forum for the protection of the plaintiff’s 10 interests. The Ninth Circuit has noted that courts may consider choice-of-law clauses in 11 evaluating whether a forum selection clause should be enforced. Sun, 901 F.3d at 1088 n.4 (“Our 12 analysis of the M/S Bremen exceptions does not change when the agreement includes a choice-of-13 law clause in addition to a forum selection clause. We generally treat the analysis as coextensive 14 and consider the clauses’ impact together.”). Even so, in noting that the public policy exception to 15 enforcement of forum selection clauses tracks the exception for deprivation of the plaintiffs’ day 16 in court, the Ninth Circuit has stated that more weight might be given to a state policy where the 17 plaintiffs “would be denied any relief” in the preselected forum. Id. at 1089 n.6. For example, in 18 AOL, a putative consumer class action, the Ninth Circuit concluded that the plaintiffs in that case 19 had identified “the kind of declaration ‘by judicial decision’ contemplated by Bremen,” where the 20 California appellate court concluded that California’s consumer protection laws embody a strong 21 California policy, including the ability to bring consumer law class actions, and where enforcing 22 the forum selection clause designating Virginia state courts would deprive the plaintiffs of any 23 remedy because Virginia state courts did not allow consumer class actions. AOL, 552 F.3d at 24 1083-84; see also, e.g., Richards 135 F.3d at 1295-96 (concluding that statutory antiwaiver 25 provisions did not void choice-of-law and choice-of-forum provisions where the preselected 26 English courts provided plaintiffs with adequate remedies under English law); Perry v. AT&T 27 Mobility LLC, No. C 11-01488 SI, 2011 WL 4080625, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2011) (declining 28 to enforce a forum selection clause requiring disputes to be brought in Florida, finding that the

1 case presented “a true conflict of law” between Florida and California law and application of 2 Florida law would deprive the plaintiff of unwaivable statutory rights to minimum wage and 3 overtime payments); Brack, 164 Cal.App.4th at 1328-29 (declining to enforce a choice-of-law 4 provision where California would suffer greater impairment of its policies vis-à-vis Nevada if 5 preselected Nevada law were to be applied).

6 Here, plaintiffs have not demonstrated that proceeding in New York would deprive them 7 of an adequate remedy, let alone any remedy whatsoever. Plaintiffs assert that in California the 8 maximum permissible interest rate without violating usury laws is 10 percent, whereas the parallel 9 interest rate ceiling in New York is 25 percent. Dkt. No. 12 at 3:3-5; Dkt. No. 24 at 10. Even 10 assuming plaintiffs’ characterization of New York law is accurate, it is not apparent why that 11 aspect of New York law would deprive plaintiffs of any remedy, particularly where plaintiffs 12 allege that each of the Agreements involves interest rates that exceed 179 percent, well above the 13 maximum permissible rate in both California and New York. Indeed, elsewhere in their 14 opposition, plaintiffs suggest that New York and California law are similar with respect to alleged 15 usurious transactions. See Dkt. No. 12 at 3:27-28 and 11 n.4. Plaintiffs further claim that 16 California has passed new legislation regarding financial disclosures for commercial products, 17 including merchant cash agreements (Dkt. No. 12 at 2 n.1), but they provide no analysis to support 18 their contention that New York “ignores” that law. Id.; see also Dkt. No. 24 at 10.

19 For these same reasons, the Court does not find that Sessions is persuasive authority for the 20 proposition that enforcing the forum selection clauses at issue would contravene any strong 21 California public policy reflected in California’s usury laws. Although Sessions noted the 22 plaintiff’s allegations that the interest rate for the contract in question violated California’s usury 23 laws as set forth in the California Constitution, the court offered little or no analysis for its 24 conclusion that enforcing the forum selection clause at issue would violate a strong public policy 25 as embodied in those laws. Sessions, 2017 WL 7156283 at *5.

26 Plaintiffs also argue, in highly conclusory fashion, that jury waiver and class action waiver 27 provisions in the Agreements violate a strong California policy and are themselves unfair and 28 unenforceable. Dkt. No. 12 at 16. Mr. Dumbaya’s declaration merely echoes the legal

1 conclusions asserted in plaintiffs' brief. Dkt. No. 13 ¶¶ 24-25. The issue before the Court, 2 however, is whether the forum selection clauses in the Agreements should be enforced. In that 3 regard, plaintiffs' stated concern about any loss of class action remedies is unconvincing, as they 4 have not brought their claims on behalf of any class. As for plaintiffs' stated concerns about their 5 right to a jury trial, at oral argument they indicated that they are addressing their right to a jury
6 trial not only under California law, but under the Seventh Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, 7 which indisputably applies in both California and New York. Regardless whether plaintiffs' jury 8 trial arguments are based in California or federal law, plaintiffs have not demonstrated how 9 enforcement of the forum selection clauses at issue would adversely impact those rights.

10 To the extent that plaintiffs' opposition suggests that the forum selection clauses should 11 not be enforced because AMZ violated California Welfare and Institutions Code § 14115.5 in 12 connection with plaintiffs' receipt of funding from Medicaid/Medi-Cal (Dkt. No. 12 at 18), their 13 arguments—a single sentence in a 22-page brief—fall far short of demonstrating that enforcement 14 of the forum selection clauses at issue would violate any strong California policy.

15 In sum, plaintiffs have not met their heavy burden to show that the public policy exception 16 to enforcement of the forum selection clauses applies.

17 C. Public Interest Factors

18 Having failed to establish that the forum selection clauses in question are invalid or 19 unenforceable, plaintiffs may avoid a transfer to the preselected forum only by demonstrating that 20 public interest factors make such a transfer inappropriate. Atl. Marine, 571 U.S. at 63-64. As 21 noted above, the Court does not give any weight to plaintiffs' choice of forum, deems the parties' 22 private interests to weigh entirely in favor of the preselected forum, and considers only whether 23 public interest factors weigh in favor of a California forum for plaintiffs' claims. Id. The public 24 interest factors to be considered "may include the administrative difficulties flowing from court 25 congestion; the local interest in having localized controversies decided at home; [and] the interest 26 in having the trial of a diversity case in a forum that is at home with the law." Id. at 63 n.6 27 (internal quotations and citation omitted). "Because those factors will rarely defeat a transfer 28 motion, the practical result is that forum-selection clauses should control except in unusual cases."

1 Id. at 64.

2 Here, plaintiffs claim that substantial events underlying their claims occurred in California
3 and that “California has a strong interest in the enforcement of its usury and finance lending laws 4 and in protecting its own citizens under its own lending laws.” Dkt. No. 12 at 17. In essence, they 5 claim that, in the public interest, California law should govern and California public policy
6 requires keeping this lawsuit in this Court. These arguments have already been considered above, 7 and rejected, and plaintiffs have not demonstrated that a strong California policy outweighs the 8 strong federal policy of enforcing forum selection clauses. Plaintiffs have failed to raise any 9 exceptional circumstances or public interest factors that preclude enforcement of the forum 10 selection clause.

11 IV. CONCLUSION

12 Based on the foregoing, AMZ’s motion to dismiss is granted. As noted above, rather than 13 dismiss plaintiffs’ complaint outright, this Court will instead transfer this action to federal court in 14 New York.<sup>6</sup> The Clerk of the Court shall transfer this action to the United States District Court for 15 the Eastern District of New York. Upon transfer, the Clerk shall close the file in this District.

6 At the motion hearing, plaintiffs suggested, without explanation, that this matter could be transferred to the Southern District of New York. Dkt. No. 24 at 7. Because AMZ’s lawsuit currently is pending in the Eastern District of New York, that is where this Court will transfer this matter. See 28 U.S.C. § 112(c) (stating that the County of Kings is located in the Eastern District of New York).
